

Dartington Hall.... An old place with a new story

Many of us are struggling with too much busyness and it is becoming increasingly apparent in the workplace where we spend around 35% of our waking lives. The evidence has become overwhelmingly clear, if you want your organisation to thrive you need to do more to support the well-being of the people at the heart of it. You may already be offering some perks in a bid to increase employee happiness, engagement, and productivity - flexible working hours, on-site massage, fitness classes, and duvet days.

At Dartington, we think there is something simpler that you should try - meaningful time spent outdoors and that's why we've created a Corporate Wellbeing Package. We believe by stepping away from our screens we can move into a deeper relationship with ourselves, our team and with the world around us.
